Your GCSE History mock plan

Use your school brief and current specification. Mock dates, topics and question types vary. This planner does not predict a grade.

Qualification, exam board and code:

Mock date(s), paper or sections, time allowed and approved arrangements:

Topics and question types confirmed by my teacher:

My first priority, based on recall or a marked answer:

How to use: complete the topic checklist, choose realistic weekly tasks, then record feedback and a retry after each practice question. Keep sleep, breaks and other subjects in the plan.

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.

Topic checklist

Test recall without notes, check gaps, then practise. Confidence is a starting judgement, not proof that a topic is secure.

Topic / subtopic	What I can recall	Gap / next task	Revisit date

Use only the assessed topics your teacher has confirmed. Add another copy if needed. A completed task should show what you can now explain or do.

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.

A manageable weekly plan

Week beginning: _____ Mock date: _____
Choose one clear outcome per session. Keep a buffer and time off.

Day / available time	Recall or question task	Completed / next step

Rest, other subjects and buffer time I will protect:

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.

Practice-question tracker

Use authorised questions and the correct mark scheme. Record the paper/year/question reference; do not copy live or restricted mock material.

Date / question reference	Timing / task	Feedback / correction	Retry date

This week: one thing that improved and one task to repeat:

For individual support, bring a marked answer and your qualification details to Jane. Enquiring does not commit you to booking: janeclarkhistory.com/contact/

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.