Your two-week History plan

For GCSE, IGCSE and A-level. Adapt dates, topics and tasks to your school and course. Include time off, other subjects and a buffer for changes.

Qualification / board / code and next assessment date:

School-confirmed topics and question types:

Two or three priorities, based on recall or marked work:

Commitments and time off I will protect:

How to use: set priorities here, plan one week at a time, then review what changed. You do not have to study every day or fill every slot. Follow teacher guidance for timings and approved assessment arrangements.

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.

Week 1: tasks and time off

Week beginning: _____ Keep one clear outcome per session. Rest days are valid entries. Adapt the order to your actual break.

Day / available time	Specific task or time off	Outcome / next step
Day 1
Day 2
Day 3
Day 4
Day 5
Day 6
Day 7

Buffer / change to make if the plan slips:

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.

Week 2: tasks and time off

Week beginning: _____ Keep one clear outcome per session. Rest days are valid entries. Adapt the order to your actual break.

Day / available time	Specific task or time off	Outcome / next step
Day 8
Day 9
Day 10
Day 11
Day 12
Day 13
Day 14

Buffer / change to make if the plan slips:

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.

What changed over the fortnight?

Compare an early task with a later attempt. Use the correct question and mark scheme. Ask your teacher about uncertain feedback; this sheet does not predict a grade.

Priority / practice task and the evidence I started with:

One correction or skill I practised:

Evidence of change in the retry (sentence, decision or accurate recall):

Remaining question to take back to school / next practice task:

Use authorised papers and materials. For the guidance and relevant support: janeclarkhistory.com/guides/christmas-history-revision-plan/. Enquiring about tuition does not commit you to booking.

Discuss History tuition with Jane >
Optional personal support. No commitment to book.